California allows pupils enrolled in high schools or middle ~~schools~~ colleges to enroll in community college courses offered at their local community college district. This “dual enrollment” is available under two statutorily defined programs known as the special admit program and the College and Career Access Pathways (“CCAP”) partnership program. The following rules apply to both the special admit and CCAP programs:

(a) When parental or guardian consent is required to admit a student to a community college dual enrollment course, the consent obtained shall apply to all community college dual enrollment courses attempted by the student until parental or guardian consent is withdrawn in writing.

(b) ~~Community college districts shall not require student high school transcripts or social security numbers as a condition of dual enrollment, but shall rely upon high school principal recommendations, or similar documents provided by the school district, as sufficient evidence of student high school enrollment and preparedness. Community college districts may accept but shall not require students to provide high school transcripts or social security numbers as a condition of dual enrollment.~~
